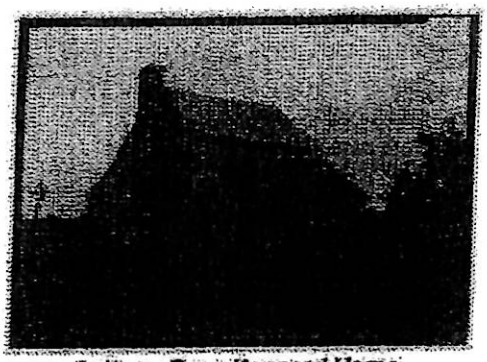
https://issuu.com/vanessakierceburzynski/

Anthony Drew Kennard

Anthony Drew Kennard was born on 8 July 1788 in Maryland. He married Sarah Moore on 16 October 1808 in Tennessee. They settled near Roans Prairie in 1832 where they were granted one league of land by the Mexican Government. The Kennard [illegible] land east of Anderson which they farmed. In 1835, the family arrived on [illegible] Creek. The area was known as "Kennard's Prairie", today known as "Mun's Prairie". A. D. Kennard joined Moore's military expedition in an attempt to council and arrange a treaty with the Tehuacana Indians.

[illegible] took little interest in local political affairs, but when the Revolution between Texas and Mexico broke out, four of Kennard's sons joined the Texas Army and fought all through the war until Texas won her independence.

The Kennard home was a wooden frame 2 story house with three bay front, a gable roof, shed roofed porch at front and lean to rooms at rear and one gable end. Stone chimney a[illegible] gable. It was built in 1832.



Anthony Drew Kennard Home

Centennial Marker for Anthony Drew Kennard and his wife Sarah

Anthony Drew Kennard died in 1848. His wife Sarah Moore became a widow at his death. [illegible] Kennard Family Cemetery [illegible] County, [illegible] miles north of Anderson. A single [illegible] marker identifies the graves of Sarah Moore [illegible] Anthony Drew Kennard and [illegible] Sarah [illegible] 1860 but her sons [illegible] well.

They had 9 children: Rachael married [illegible]; Michael married [illegible] Mack, they had 4 children: John H. Kennard, married Hattie Brown; Stella married Gary Thomas; Lizzie married Jack Hurst; and Mary Lou.

ETTER FEBRUARY 2016 by Grimes County Histori...

/issuu.cc

Rachael Virginia Kennard
Circa 1813 Feb 1899

Anthony Drew Kennard
12-8-1818
2-2-1885

Children of Anthony and Sarah Kennard

1. Michael Moore Kennard
   b. 15 July 1809 d. 7 July 1895
2. Louisiana Kennard
   b. 23 May 1811 d. 13 September 1822
3. Rachel Virginia Kennard
   b. [illegible] 13 d. 8 November 1867
4. William Eaton Kennard
   b. [illegible] 1815 d. [illegible]
5. Anthony Drew Kennard Jr.
   b. 8 December 1818 d. 27 October 1885
6. [illegible]
   b. 24 September 1821 d. 24 April 1892
7. John Rice Kennard
   b. 25 July 1824 d. 27 October 1884
8. [illegible]
   b. 26 February 1828

(http://www.woodvorwerk.com/wood/g1/p1084.htm)
(http://www.woodvorwerk.com/wood/g1/p1085.htm)
(http://www.woodvorwerk.com/wood/g1/p1086.htm)
(http://www.woodvorwerk.com/wood/g1/p1087.htm)
(http://www.woodvorwerk.com/wood/g1/p1088.htm)
(http://www.woodvorwerk.com/wood/g1/p1089.htm)
(http://www.woodvorwerk.com/wood/g1/p1090.htm)
(http://www.woodvorwerk.com/wood/g1/p1091.htm)
(http://www.woodvorwerk.com/wood/g1/p1092.htm)
(http://www.woodvorwerk.com/wood/g1/p1093.htm)
(http://www.woodvorwerk.com/wood/g1/p1094.htm)
(http://www.woodvorwerk.com/wood/g1/p1095.htm)
(http://www.woodvorwerk.com/wood/g1/p1096.htm)
(http://www.woodvorwerk.com/wood/g1/p1097.htm)

Letter dated [illegible] 26, 1880 from Michael Kennard to his brother A. D. Kennard.

Dear Brother, [illegible] length of time I have at last determined to write you. We are all well and the health of our community is tolerable good. Davis' letter to Drew was received on Eighteenth. Drew is now going to school at Plantersville and getting along very well – Since I last wrote to you there has been some important changes in our family affairs which will no doubt be interesting to you. Mother has sold her place to Mr. Fanthorp for ($12,240) Twelve thousand, two hundred and forty dollars, and has divided out a part of her negroes among the children. Rose and her family were appraised at $3,000 and went to Mr. Fanthorp; Henrietta and Fox were appraised at $2,000 and came to me. Tom was appraised to John at $1,700. Austin was appraised at $1,500 and set apart for you; and Abella was appraised at $1,500 and went to Mark – the appraisement was made by persons chosen by the children. Mr. Fanthorp chose Dr. Patrick, John chose [illegible] and I chose Mr. Robert Geter for you and myself, I took the liberty on your part in your absence believing that you would sanction what I have done. The appraisers set the value on the negroes first and then mother divided them out as [illegible] and had given John also $1,000 in money which makes his portion amounts to $2,700 and she intends having [illegible] equal with John's. She intends to sell her horses and cattle as soon as she can conveniently and wishes [illegible] William to come down and I would like for you both to be here also. We have had a very severe winter and a great [illegible] the people around the county around us have died from the effect of it. Mother has lost a great many and it can't [illegible] until spring. The corn is scarce and worth from one dollar to one dollar and fifty cents per [illegible] to supply me. As I promised you I went to Austin and attended to your business. This you have no doubt learned since. If possible don't fail to come down soon, as I wish you to be here and see to your interests yourself, so that you will be satisfied. Mother will not commence house keeping for a year if she ever does again. I am disposed to believe that she will not keep house for herself any more. I could write you many other matters that would probably afford you some interest in relation to my own affairs but time and space will not permit at present. When you come down we can talk over all small matters of family interest. Please write to me on the reception of this and let me know how you are getting along and when you will be down, and also when William will come with you and when he will come. Write me everything interesting that is going on in your neighborhood and believe me. Your affectionate brother, M. M. Kennard

https://issuu.com/vanessakiereczuzynski/docs/genc_newsletter_

Letter from Michael Kennard to his brother A. D. Kennard Jr. dated January 4, 1861

My dear brother, a long time has elapsed since there has been any written correspondence between us and I am free to confess that at last an equal sham of the fault is mine but it is not worthwhile to fill up half a letter with apologies and excuses suffice it to say that I know that it has not been for the want of brotherly feeling on my part and have the fullest confidence that it has not been on yours. Well another year has passed away and turned its year of events into the history of the world and whether better or worse one thing is certain we are older and though there may be much to regret in the undivided history of each yet there is much to be thankful for, for what has been bad might have been worse and which a merciful providence continues to extend to us the great born life we may repent, we may improve, and we should be grateful for the opportunity to repent and to improve and use it accordingly but enough of this moralizing.

We are all well and when I say we, in this context I mean the whole generation of Kennard's and their kin in these parts. Mother is staying at Mr. Fanthorp's and appears to be as well contented as could be expected under the circumstances. I call and spend a while with her almost every day. She has a comfortable room to herself where I most always find her alone, as I mostly make my calls immediately after breakfast or dinner, which affords me a pleasant opportunity to chat about old times or the absent ones of the hold household who are never forgotten. You know she is the same dear, good, kind old mother with a heart ever warm and beaming with love for us all, thinking of us, talking of us, and best of all, praying for us. May God always bless our dear old mother and grant her yet a long, quiet peaceful evening of rest in her declining years. And may we all profit by the fine Christian example she has lived and acted before us and strive to perform the great duty that evolves on us as her children to follow her example as more calculated than anything else to conduce to her happiness and peace at the close of her journey of life. But I am moralizing again it seems that I am in that mood tonight and can't relish it.

My family are now and have been for more than two weeks, yes almost three weeks in Houston on a visit to my wife's parents and I have been at home almost alone during their absence. Then you think it is no wonder that I am not very lively tonight. I assure you it does go hard for the wife and little ones to be away from me, but in three or four more days I trust we will all be together at home again. I shall go down for them next day after tomorrow if nothing happens to prevent. Very poor crops were made in this part of the county last year. Mine was almost an entire failure, which you know was cultivated to discourage a new beginner in the farming business. But I shall not despair yet. I shall try again and harder this year. I have done pretty much all the law business but it has taken nearly all I could make to support my family owing to a failure in seed crop. And there is no chance now to collect what is owing to me and therefore I am like almost every body else in these parts not able to pretend to meet my debts so every body or nearly every body is pressed with the reality of hard times. Through frank providence I have enough to eat and wear for me and mine for the present and if I make a good crop I think I can straighten out next year.

There is considerable political excitement here but I am happy to sat that not with standing hard times that we are nearly all about the right way of thinking politically when I say right I mean that we are in favor of secession and nothing shorter will satisfy us. I am for the old "Lone Star Republic" once more and forever. I have lost all confidence in the union and hope and trust it will be dissolved soon, very soon to sooner the better. I had rather sacrifice all that I have and my life with it than submit to a "Black Republican President."